

Hi there!

My name is Melissa. I'm a photographer, recipe developer, homesteader, food blogger, mom of five, and general lover of all things delicious

Bless this Mess is an honest picture of a happy small town life. You'll find lots and lots of family-friendly recipes with a little life (adventures in raising chickens and children, hobby farming, and house building) mixed in. I'm all about balance when it comes to eating. Bless this Mess features simple, quick, whole food recipes but always some room for dessert. My audience loves meal planning and food prep tips; they also love a quick and healthy answer to the question, "What's for dinner?". I love to teach people how to feed their family well, no health food store needed.

Bless this Mess is growing like a weed. Don't let the numbers fool you, the quality of content and the loyalty of my readers are strengths that can't be ignored.
